Revolutionary Activity in Illi-Michiana :

Let Us Not Forget

By Prof. Ken Schoon

While General George Washington was busy on the East coast, activities west of the Appalachians determined what the United States would look like after the Revolution War ended. In celebration of the 250th anniversary of the Independence of the United States, this talk presents what was happening in the Illinois, Indiana, and Michigan Territories in the late 1700s, as well as the impact and evolution of the Northwest Territory before statehood in the early 1800s.
